Intro: Happy Rock Music by bensound.com

Jingle: 427! Where you get your information!

Stacy: Welcome everyone to the Troop Morning Radio Show here on 427. As always, I'm your host, Stacy Tagalong. Today's episode is a real treat, we have Cookie Scout Press Secretary, Tiffany Mint to give us the latest on what she's heard about a certain figure who has been in hot waters recently. Tiffany has agreed to give the Troop this exclusive interview. Welcome back to the show Tiffany!

Tiffany: Hi Stacy! It's so good to be back on the show this morning. This show is a must listen for Cookie Scouts everywhere so whenever I am on it, I feel honored.

Stacy: Aw Thanks! It's an honor to have someone like you on the show. I know our listeners appreciate the news we get from you.

Tiffany: Oh you flatter me, you're as sweet as sugar.

Stacy: Alright, what's the goss?

Tiffany: This one is juicy, if you're passively listening, you are going to want to stop what you're doing to hear this.

Stacy: Grabbing my popcorn now!

Tiffany: I have exclusive intel that the Deebler Elf is not who he says he is.

Stacy: Juicy! But where did you get this information? How do we know what you're about to say is true?

Tiffany: The source is none other than Deebler's son. His son reached out to me with this information because he felt he could not keep silent anymore about the man that Deebler is. Deebler has been estranged from his family for a long time, he abandoned them to run his cookie business.

Stacy: No way!

Tiffany: Yes way, Deebler does not care about family values and that is clear from the fact he willingly left his young wife and three children alone with no financial support. His wife, well I guess ex-wife, has to work three jobs for her children. Her daughter has even joined Cookie Scouts to help contribute by selling our world famous cookies.

Stacy: A quick note on cookies - we're taking orders now for cookies! You can visit the ordering website at cookiescouts.com/order or by calling 1-800-COO-KIE!. That is 1-800-266-5431. Okay, back to the show. I can't believe what you're saying!

Tiffany: I know! On top of being a terrible father and husband, Deebler has been lying about his identity.

Stacy: What do you mean?

Tiffany: Get this - Deebler is not even a real elf.

Stacy: No Way! You're joking!

Tiffany: I wish I was. His ears? Prosthetics. His height? He's just short.

Stacy: I am floored at this revelation. How can you trust someone to sell cookies to you when they are lying about who they say they are? Wow.

Tiffany: It is true, his son showed me pictures of his grandparents. Not an elf in sight. He's just a regular guy. On top of that he has no fashion sense.

Stacy: That is truly a crime. What else have you heard from his son?

Tiffany: On top of being a liar and a terrible family man, I also have word that he stole the Cookie Scout recipes. His son told me that one evening his father had a meeting with a mysterious person. This person ended up being a Cookie Scouts employee. He coerced this employee to spill all of the recipes by manipulating them.

Stacy: I am on the edge of my seat.

Tiffany: Deebler told the employee that he would hire them. That the Cookie Scouts are taking advantage of them and that we underpay them. He claims that the Cookie Scouts exploit the scouts to do work for next to no pay. He claims we are an unsupportive work environment. That Deebler would treat them better.

Stacy: Which is far from the truth! Cookie Scouts is the most supportive work environment!

Tiffany: Once the employee told Deebler our recipes, Deebler kicked them to curb. A quick note on the employee: The employee still works for the Cookie Scouts and is in counseling currently. We wish them the best. However, that wouldn't be the first employee Deebler mistreats Stacy.

Stacy: Are you telling me that Deebler mistreats his employees?

Tiffany: That is exactly what I am saying. His son told me that Deebler frequently takes expensive vacations. However, how he pays for these vacations is by not paying his employees! (Stacy gasps) His employees work long hours and are not compensated at all. He has steadily cut wages and extended hours, all to put more cash in his pocket. Again, his family sees none of the profit.

Stacy: I am disgusted. I can't believe he is not paying his employees. That is horrific.

Tiffany: It begs the question of do you really want to buy your cookies from a man like that. Because, I do not. I want to support the honest, caring, stylish Cookie Scouts.

Stacy: I agree with you Tiff. Do you have any last comments?

Tiffany: I hope that listeners walk away from this interview knowing that their choice to support Cookie Scouts is the correct one. Deebler is not the man for the people. Frankly he is not much of a man.

Stacy: Thank you Tiffany Mint for coming to the show today, it was very eye opening.

Tiffany: Of course, I love coming to the Troop!

Stacy: Alright listeners we're going to head to a commercial break, and when you come back we'll discuss the latest news coming from all troops and talk about the newest Cookie Scout on the block that's making waves in the celebrity world, Ava Shortbread!
